(U) Arizona – Man Accused of Plotting Attack Denied Bail

(U) Phoenix – A Tucson man charged with plotting a terrorist attack on a motor vehicle office in metro Phoenix will remain jailed until his trial because he poses a danger to the community, a judge ruled yesterday. Maricopa County Superior Court Judge Sam Myers said no conditions could be imposed on releasing Mahin Khan from jail that could ensure the public is protected. Authorities say Khan wanted to attack a motor vehicle office and instructed an undercover FBI employee to start building homemade grenades. They say Khan wanted to inspire an insurgency in the United States to carry out the sort of attacks that had occurred in Paris and Brussels and had online exchanges with a person believed to be a member of ISIL.

Macedonia closed its border in March amid efforts across Europe to prevent a repeat of mass migration to the continent in 2015.
